

JEST MOTHERHOOD

Compiled by Sharina Shariff

I was at the lift landing waiting for the lift with my girl of six years. A man wearing a white and black striped shirt and long pants came along. While in the lift, my girl remarked, "Mummy, why did they allow prisoners to be out?" Apparently, she had thought prisoners are donned in white and black stripes. The man turned around and smiled at her.

— Cindy Tan

I was so sleepy one day and my three-year-old daughter came to disturb me. I pretended to cry like a baby hoping that she would leave me alone. Instead she went to take her diaper and insisted that I put it on, at the same time she patted my buttocks saying, "Baby don't cry ok, you want milk?" I became wide-awake after that...haha.

— Ezann Yudhistira

We were travelling along the ECP and there was a massive jam. My son innocently showed us his toy ambulance saying, "Do you want me to turn on my ambulance so that people can give way to us?"

— Suzana Ma'arof

My sister and her boyfriend were talking and cracking jokes when my four-year-old girl came by and showed her dissatisfaction towards my sister. She was actually jealous of her for being close to "her boyfriend"! Well, he is kind of close to her too as he likes to chat and play with her. So she thinks that he is hers. Girls nowadays....haiz.

— Zoe Ho

AWW... DID THEY REALLY SAY THAT?

If your child said something that tickled your funny bone, share it with us at jest\_motherhood@epi.com.sg

My five-year-old girl came to me, "Mummy, can you blow this balloon for me please?" I was shocked to see what she was holding and in my heart I said, "Oh my god! It's a condom! What am I supposed to tell her?" Lucky thing I do have balloons in my drawer. Without saying anything further, I took the condom from her and went to my room to blow up the real balloon...Phew! That was close!!

— Elaine Kan

AWW... Did they Really Say That?

MODEL: MUHAMMAD AISY FAWWAZ